INTRODUCTION

These materials, primarily genealogical in nature, were collected and compiled by Nancy Elizabeth Jones (Mrs. Robert Houston) Stickley (1881-1962), genealogist and wife of an attorney and judge of Memphis, Tennessee. The collection was given to Tennessee State Library and Archives by her niece and heir, Florine Jones (Mrs. Harry) Hall, Sweetwater, Tennessee.

The materials in this collection measure 12.6 linear feet. There are no restrictions on the materials.

Single photocopies of unpublished writings in the Stickley Papers may be made for purposes of scholarly research.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

This collection of Nancy Elizabeth Jones (Mrs. Robert Houston) Stickley, spanning approximately the period 1600-1946, and numbering approximately 8,700 items and 5 volumes, is composed primarily of genealogical data copied from various records. There are also account books, clippings, a diary (copy), indexes, invitations, letters, maps, a memoir (copy), notes, obituaries, a photograph of Robert E. Lee, a plat, portions of genealogical and historical periodicals, a receipt, scrapbooks, and sketches. Although the following are not original sources, much valuable information has been copied from them: cemetery records, census records, church records, court records, deeds, estate records, land grants, marriage records, military records, tax lists, and wills.

Genealogical data is given for the following families, among numerous others: Bogart, Doyle, Heironymous, Jansen (Johnson), Lincoln, Patterson, Powell, Range, Rapelje, Reneau, Sevier, Sims, Stickley, Tipton, Van Arsdale, Washington, Wilson, Wright, and Wyckoff.

There is data taken from records of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia, with a large concentration of records from Somerset County, New Jersey; Greene, Jefferson, and Knox counties, Tennessee; and Frederick and Prince William counties in Virginia. Most of the records as a whole are from New Jersey, Tennessee, and Virginia.

Much of the data from the New Jersey area concerns Dutch families. In the collection is also information on English lineages, German pioneers in Virginia, and family nationality origins.

Data has been taken from cemetery records of New York; Carter, Jefferson, Union, and Washington counties, Tennessee; and from records of the Baptist, Dutch Reformed, Episcopal, Society of Friends (Quaker), Lutheran, and Presbyterian churches.

Original documents include three account books which appear to be those of stores owned by Joseph Johnston (1809-1874), and James A. Haire (b. ca. 1784) in Coffee and Monroe counties, Tennessee. The book for the store in Coffee County is for 1824-1826, while the other book is undated. Johnston was an early pioneer and leading businessman of Monroe County. It would appear that he operated at least two business centers in the county from 1841 to 1848 – one at Madisonville, the other at Mt. Vernon. From 1855 to 1859 the firm name was Johnston and Haire. James A. Haire, the father-in-law of Joseph Johnston, was quite prominent in the official life of Monroe County. Other original manuscripts include letters (1873; 1884), a plat (1839) of Middletown, Edgar County, Illinois, notes (1857-1874), and a receipt (1851).

Newspaper clippings include a large collection of the column “Dropped Stitches in Southern History” by Mary Brown Daniel (Mrs. John Trotwood) Moore, numerous clippings pertaining to the Hamilton and Shelby county areas in Tennessee, and to historic houses, etc., especially in the southern states and New York. There are two scrapbooks of clippings dealing with family names and heraldry.

The diary (1862-1863) of Zeboim Cartter Patten (1840-1925), published April 9, 1930, in the Chattanooga News (TN), begins at Camp Butler, Illinois, tells of his movements over Kentucky, describes the setting of Henry Clay’s home near Lexington, Kentucky, tells of the area around Lexington and around Richmond, Kentucky, mentions

John Hunt Morgan's activities, and ends with comments about the burial of soldiers at Fort Donelson, Tennessee. (Patten's diaries in four volumes are also available on microfilm in the Microfilm Division.)

The memoir (1861-1869) of George Decature French (1834-1923), published in installments from April through December 1920, in the Midland Methodist, tells of experiences during the Battle of Puncheon Creek, Kentucky, of deserters during the War, of the days following the War, and of experiences connected with the Methodist Church. Reverend French, a Methodist minister and Presiding Elder of the Morristown (Tennessee) District, was the son-in-law of Bishop E.E. Hoss. Mention of Bishop Hoss and Dr. William E. Munsey is made in the memoir.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Martha Jane Tipton (Mrs. John M.) Jones

Martha Jane (Tipton) Jones, born August 31, 1846, and whose death occurred July 28, 1913, was a woman of the rarest intellectual attainments, one whose education was not closed with the completion of the curriculum offered by her home town schools at Elizabethton or that of the Synodical College at Rogersville, which she attended until the war broke out; – truly, the World was her school, Travel her teacher, Nature her book, and God her friend. Born with a rare susceptibility to receive impressions from God's Works in their correct proportions and correlations, endowed with an alert and sagacious mind, a gigantic and unassailable memory, her aggressive thirst for knowledge sought alike the fields of nature, science, history and art, and through the mother of thirteen children, nine of whom she reared to maturity, she was ever abreast of the times, genuinely conversant upon government and political conditions at home and abroad, and more than superficially informed of the great advances in science, manufacture and art – a strong-minded woman indeed but she herself never suspected how much.

Thirteen children were born to John M. Jones and his wife, Martha Tipton, none of whom are living (1913) to bless and honor the memory of their parents. They are as follows: Cora Lee, who died in infancy, Mollie Tipton, who died in infancy; William Albert, general manager of the Park Woolen Mills at Chattanooga; Samuel Tipton, president of the Bank of Sweetwater; John McClung, Jr., who is mayor and a manufacturer of Sweetwater; Ben Dickinson, president of the Eagle Flouring Mills; Kate Lenoir, who died in infancy; Oliver King who is a member of the Guthrie-Bradley & Jones Mercantile Firm in Sweetwater; Nancy Elizabeth, at home; Mamie Rachel, wife of W.D. Gilman, Jr., of Chattanooga; Myrtle, who died at the age of six years; and Sue Coffin, at home.
